You basically play as one of the characters (free or paid), taking one of the difficult levels (easy, medium, tough, brutal) and try to survive and get help to get off the island. From gilligames' website: Four passengers on a spaceship were on a mission to colonize a new planet when the plane crash landed on a planet that is almost completely covered by the ocean. You are the only survivor - a senior executive from The Decoo Corporation, the company that sponsored the original mission. Now you need your survival skills to stay alive long enough to be saved. Build shelter, find food and drink, and collect salvageable parts from the wreckage that washes ashore. Use the parts to build a space radio and call for a rescue team to win the game. Some of the points are quite cumbersome to do, but the game is pretty self-explanatory and easy to maneuver around. I like the results in the game as it keeps me on track. Also the island interacts with you by presenting different objects when you wake up – it's quite amusing to wake up to canned meat next to you! The main highlight of the game is finding and crafting resources. Considering what an addict I am in Virtual Villagers Origins 2, this game is definitely for me! The ultimate goal is to build a space phone to call for help, but there are other interesting things that can be done as well. You can get it from the Apple Store or Play Store. Reviews are coming! Since I caught and killed them, no one else has turned up. Is that all you get the whole game is 2 of them? I also assume that drilling is the only thing that is beyond fish in terms of meat.
